The Yale Journal of Criticism

Peter Brooks, Chair, Editorial Board/4 times a year

The Yale Journal of Criticism publishes works of interest to readers in the humanities, irrespective of field or period, including scholarly articles, original art, review essays, polemical interventions, and conference and symposium papers. Experimental and performative critical genres, such as memoir, confession, and fable, have also been featured. Named best new journal by the Conference of Editors of Learned Journals in 1989, work from the journal has been included in Best American Essays. Subscriptions: $23.00, individuals; $61.00 institutions. Foreign postage: $6.30.

Mosaic, a journal for the interdisciplinary study of literature, publishes original scholarly articles which both theorize and practically demonstrate how insights from other disciplines can be used to elucidate literary works and issues, and vice versa. Published quarterly, one issue each year focuses on a topic of contemporary concern. The current special focus issue, Media Matters (Vol. 28/4), features essays on the pros and cons of hypertext, virtual reality experiments, comic books, marketing Chaucer, media and gender, technology and postmodernism, illustrations in medieval manuscripts, the rise of a serial killer to celebrity status, plus an introduction and an extensive bibliography. The first general issue of 1996 (Vol. 29/1) includes essays on The Remains of the Day, J.M. Coetzee, and terminal illness and the gaze.

"While a number of prominent journals claim to have an interdisciplinary orientation, Mosaic is the only one that publishes consistently innovative work across the disciplines."

—Michael Wutz, Weber Studies
