New Literary History Special Issue on "Use" (Volume 44, Issue 4)

What are the uses of literature—or film, sculpture, dance, philosophy, music, dramatic performance?
And to what purpose are these subjects taught in colleges and universities? The essays in this special issue share a sharpened curiosity about a widely invoked yet rarely examined idea. What exactly does "use" encompass and how might its meanings and possibilities be understood?

With essays by Michael Roth, Helen Small, Terry Eagleton, Brian Boyd, Elizabeth Fowler, R. M. Berry, James Collins, and Nancy Easterlin.
